ABSTRACT

This course concentrates on the geographic location of the Roman Empire, the Roman personality, the family organization, foods, and eating customs. The cultural background is presented in English and dialogues; mottoes and songs in Latin are included. Much emphasis is placed on English derivatives and on the comparison between Roman and contemporary society. This is the first course of a trilogy which may be offered. The three quinmesters focus on various aspects of the life of a Roman family in the first century A.D. Each quinmester may be studied independently, but success will be more likely if the previous quin has been studied. The course outline also includes a statement of the broad goals and objectives of the course, a description of course content, suggestions for classroom procedures and materials expansion, and sample evaluations. Culture: Instrument for measuring behavioral objective IVC.

Read the following statements. Then write "R" if it refers only to Romans, "A" if it refers only to Americans, and "B" if it refers to both.

1.	Schooling for boys only.
2.	Eat at a table.
3.	Mother works either at home or out of the house.
	Father has complete control in family.
5.	People recline to eat.
6.	Children play games after school.
7•	Eat butter, pepper, tomatoes and corn.
8.	Eat a lot of meat, fish, cheese, fruit and vegetables.
	Mother's Day is celebrated.
10.	Cirls are educated at home.

Attitudes: This is difficult to evaluate except for the students' active interest in the language in all its phases and in the people who spoke it. The student should display an attitude of sympathetic understanding toward the culture, its people, and its language. He should demonstrate his awareness of some of the many reasons for studying latin and perhaps the best way to evaluate this would be by his desire to continue his study of the language. To facilitate as objective an evaluation as possible, the following guide for noting activities of each student could be kept.
